- 3 different fruits with different shapes (eg. pear, apple, banana, pineapple, peach)
- 3 small knives

STUDENT MATERIALS

- Video: The mission by Vandkunsten
- Hand out: Family (3 copies in A3)
- Poster: Mood Board (1 copy in A3)

SHARE MOOD BOARDS

- Padlet

1. Divide the class into tree productive teams and set up three working areas for the groups.
2. Let each group pick a fruit and ask them to explore and describe the shape of their fruit, the color, aroma, taste, feeling of material etc. Try not to tell them why, just let them express their curiosity.
3. Present the task for the students by showing them the video by Vandkunsten. Make sure, they understand the task, their role as an architect, what is a webinar.
4. Introduce the Mood Board by showing them the example, and hand out "Cardboard" and "Family" for each group

! A mood board !

(a 'mood or inspiration board')
is a kind of collage of different materials

- images, texts, colors, objects, drawings -

with the purpose of conveying a mood, an impression, a style or an area in a simple and clear way for the inspiration for a group of people who need to work further on with the topic.

5. Each group makes a Mood Board presenting:
 - A. The family (the customer) who shall live in the sustainable house. Let the groups decide the members of the family and their needs.
 - B. The shape of their house in a sectional drawing.
 - C. The location of their house. Place the fruit at a typical location in your local area. Show the characteristics of the location - soil and weather conditions, vegetation, materials and colors by taking close-up-pictures, videos, drawings etc.
6. Ask the students to collect and bring materials for the creative prototyping process at the webinar. Paper, cardboard boxes, strings, plastic cans, wood, grass.
7. Share the 3 Mood Boards presenting the family, the shape and the location to the shared padlet no later than 25. of October.
